

Who We Are

Who We Are

Westchester Publishing Services has been the preferred editorial services and composition provider for many of the most recognized book and journal publishers since 1969.

We are the largest U.S. owned and managed company dedicated solely to editorial, composition, and digital conversion services. With our headquarters, domestic editorial, and customer service functions in Danbury, CT, and wholly owned subsidiary editorial and composition facilities in New Delhi, and Chennai, India, Westchester offers the benefits of a U.S. managed global organization.

Westchester's primary services – U.S. managed and India Direct Full Service editorial & composition, and Composition-Only production are structured to deliver reliable, quality, flexible, on-time services, and affordable scalability for your specific publication objectives. We have nearly 400 employees and access to hundreds of expert freelancers to ensure our clients are provided with a full range of offerings.

We launched Westchester K-12 Publishing Services based in Dayton, OH, to address the specific content development and production requirements of the K-12 educational publishing market. This division is led by Kevin Gray and Marie Brown, who along with their subject expert teams, bring decades of experience to serve the unique needs of the K-12 market.

In 2014, Westchester converted to a 100% U.S. employee-owned company via an ESOP, ensuring the long-term continuation of our U.S. ownership and management, while facilitating significant investments in our people, technology, and services.

Who We Work With

Many of our newer clients are established publishers who outgrew their internal capacity for pre-press production, or were exploring alternatives to costly in-house services like copyediting, project management, typesetting, and eBook conversions.

Other clients had long ago outsourced these services to third-party vendors and freelancers for segments of their list, but were experiencing quality problems and other challenges. After seeing how Westchester was able to provide an affordable, high-quality solution, they have since become loyal clients.

Still other clients tried using vendors or freelancers, but found managing these resources to be a full-time job which eroded the benefits of scalability. Using our reliable project management resources, clients can confidently assign projects to Westchester, allowing them to concentrate on additional growth initiatives.
